Herbal Teas

菊花

Ju Hua “Chrysanthemum Flower”

It is Chinese tradition that once a pot of chrysanthemum tea has been finished, hot water is added again to the blossoms in the pot (creating a tea that is marginally less full bodied); this procedure is repeated a few times. Chrysanthemum tea was introduced during the Song Dynasty (960–1279)

Location: Huang Shan, An Hui Province

Harvest Period: October 23, 2015

桂花

Gui Hua “Osmanthus Flower”

Sweet and fragrant, it is an excellent tea drinking alone or with other green teas. Used in Asian cooking for its rich aroma, its unique smell is enjoyed for many centuries. A cup of osmanthus tea can fill a whole room with this sweet and fragrant smell. Wild, uncultivated and hand-picked by the Chu family

Location: Guangxi Province

Harvest Period: September 27 - October, 2 2013

金银花

Jin Yin Hua “Honeysuckle Flower”

This sweet and perfumed bush fills the late spring air with its sweet aroma, however this lovely climbing vine is more than only a pretty face, it might simply be the cure for the common cold. The Chinese name, jin yin hua or shuang hua, and the stem jin yin teng or jen tung. It is viewed as one of the 50 essential herbs in Chinese herbology, a long way from the Western route grouping as a decorative vine for the lawn wall.

Location: Anhui Province

Harvest Date: December, 2015
